

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for moving of contents includes a comprising a input unit for inputting contents and a control unit for controlling of moving the contents to other medium by analyzing a copy control code of the contents to move contents with restricted number of copy to another storage media and a method for moving of contents includes the steps of analyzing a copy control code of the contents when a user selects moving of the contents from a first storage medium to a second storage medium and storing the contents the contents in the second storage medium by converting the copy control code of the contents according to the result of analysis, thus to provide improved convenience for a user as long as copyrights are not infringed by storing the stored contents in the storage media not in by just copying but by moving.

1000222333445566778899A